life than Mr. Stead is in his denunciation of the abominations—civic, social, and industrial—of the citizens of Chicago. The harassed reader is glad to remember that it is true, not only that righteousness exalteth a nation, but that the common life of a community is made possible only by the goodness of its members, and this suggests the reflection that the shadows in Mr. Stead's picture must be out of proportion to the lights. The work is characterized by brilliant journalistic capacity, by fearless and ruthless frankness, by the marks of gigantic energy, and by striking powers of organization, as well as by qualities of method and taste which are peculiarly Mr. Stead's own.

THREE MONTHS IN A WORKSHOP. A Practical Study. By Paul Göhre, General Secretary of the Evangelical Social Congress. Translated from the German by A. B. Carr. With a Prefatory Note by Professor Richard T. Ely. London: Swan Sonnenschein & Co., 1895. Pp. xi., 219.

The original German of this interesting little book ("Drei Monate Fabrikarbeiter") has already been noticed in this JOURNAL (vol. ii., No. 3, April, 1892); and it now only remains to give it a cordial welcome in its English form. It should be read by every one interested in social problems.
